MEMORIAL DAY. TO THE CONFEDERATE DEAD. Composed by Mary M. Swann. (Copyright applied for.)

Today we decorate the grave Of General Lee, the great and brave, Most noble, true and faithful man. For four long years he led the van. The wreath that crowns the victor's brow Is his—'twas cruel fate to bow To heaven's decree—to unbend By war the captive, that mankind Might dwell alike—not bond, but free— Within this land of liberty. Success was his—the unseen hand Which led the way and held command Made him conqueror in the fight. He had espoused for God and right, To work His will—then, at his word, That victory must be transferred. Strew flowers on the soldiers' graves, O'er his men, who fought to save Our homes, our rights, our southern land, Invaded by oppressor's hand. Some down upon by northern hordes In '61, with glittering swords, Abolishing, with bugle blast, An institution in the past, Fearful by them, and thus created, 'Till the south was devastated. Their traffic then, for greed of gain, Is now no longer to remain, Because that greed, not fed, they boast The love of liberty must cost Their brothers' blood. To free the slave Each man has filled a martyr's grave.

RIOT IN THE PENITENTIARY.

A riot in the state prison at Richmond, the most serious that has broken out in years, was made public by Superintendent J. B. Wood yesterday. Several men, mostly colored, were more or less seriously injured in the riot, which occurred in a fitting room of the shoe factory, a few days ago.

The trouble started when Guard E. W. Payne ordered George Miller and William Johnson, colored, who had arisen from their seats and engaged in a fight, to sit down. Miller refused to obey and backed into a corner. The guard followed him and, after repeatedly ordering him to return to his bench, finally struck him on the head with a club. In falling, the negro grasped Payne about the legs, and in a twinkling the 145 men employed there rose to their feet and a general melee was precipitated.

Several rushed upon the guard, while others, nearly all of whom were whites, went to his assistance. The fight waged furiously for some minutes, the men throwing iron caps, weighing about one pound each, and huge wooden spoons at each other from behind benches and tables. In the midst of the battle, Guards W. L. Dawson and W. H. Shaw and Foreman J. H. Powell arrived on the scene and after a strenuous charge upon the mob, finally restored order.

When it was over, it was found that fully a dozen of the participants, all convicts and mostly negroes, had been injured, several of them badly cut about the head and face. All the men in any way connected were summoned before Superintendent Wood, who immediately acted upon their cases. Johnson and Miller got the ball and chain penalty.

The superintendent said yesterday that it is his intention to present the names of the men who aided the guards, who have served half their sentences, to the board of directors of the prison, with the recommendation that they be given a full pardon. In the case of two of the men, who had not yet served half their time, he would recommend that extreme leniency be shown them by Governor Mann.

THE POPE AND BISHOP PARET.

A cablegram from Rome published in New York yesterday says: "Great surprise has been felt the past week in Rome on account of the extraordinary outbreak in a section of the American press regarding the recent visit here of Dr. William Paret, Episcopal bishop of Maryland. Owing to a false cable dispatch other Episcopal bishops have written to the press disavowing 'the intolerances and discourtesy' of Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of State, who is accused of having replied to the bishop's request for an audience with the pope that his holiness was neither a picture nor a statue to be inspected or criticized. No such message ever was sent by Cardinal Merry del Val or anybody else. The real facts of the case are as follows: Bishop Paret came to Rome with a letter of introduction to the cardinal secretary of State, in which he was recommended for an audience. In due course the bishop was informed that he would be admitted to the pope's presence on April 17. Unfortunately he had already made all arrangements to leave Rome for Florence on April 15, so he sent a note saying he greatly regretted that he would not be able to avail himself of the great privilege of an audience with the pope. The bishop himself has been greatly pained over the disturbance made about him in America and has written to a friend in Rome complaining of the utterly false statement made in the cable dispatch and denying that Cardinal Merry del Val treated him with great discourtesy, that an audience with the pope had

Southern Exhibit

Atlanta, Ga., May 23.—In connection with the work it is doing in exploiting the resources of the South with the purpose of attracting desirable settlers, the Southern Railway Company announced today that during the coming fall it will make displays of southern products at a number of important fairs in the North and West where they will be witnessed by at least a million people outside the South.

M. V. Richards, Land and Industrial Agent, Washington, will make the exhibit for the Southern Railway system and all who are interested should communicate with him, giving information about the material they can furnish, so that proper instructions may be given as to shipping products for display.

A letter to any of them or to Mr. Richards will receive prompt attention. The determination of the Southern Railway Company to make such extensive exhibits of the resources and products of the South at expositions and fairs in the North and West this fall is due to the splendid results received from such work in the past.

The severest wind storm ever known there threatened the town of Tappahannock yesterday afternoon. The wind blew down buildings, moved houses, and swept off fruit trees and beautiful shade trees level with the ground. The First Baptist Church, the largest and handsomest church in town, is a total wreck. So far as heard from, the storm was confined to the immediate vicinity of Tappahannock.
